WHAT DO I READ NEXT?

You just finished the last book in a series or the last book your favorite author has written to date. What do you read now?

The library staff understands that sometimes finding that next book to read is harder than just looking up an author's name. So we now have ways to get book suggestions right in your inbox!

The first reader tool that you can use to find something new is NextReads. NextReads is an exciting e-newsletter service that connects our readers with new gems, best-sellers, related titles and maybe even an awesome older title that they might have missed before! Right now we offer e-newsletters covering Christian Fiction, Fantasy & Science Fiction, Fiction A to Z, Home, Garden, and DIY, Kid's Books, Mystery, Picture Books, Romance, Teen Scene, Thriller & Suspense, and Tween Reads. To subscribe to any or all of them, all you have to do is go to our Reader's Corner page (<https://www.ned.lib.tx.us/meh-pl-readers-corner>) and click on the NextReads box to start receiving them today.

The second reader tool available for you to use is Author Alerts. Author Alerts allows you to receive email or text message notification when the Library orders new titles by your favorite authors or performers! Once you get the alert that the library has something new by one of your favorites, you can place a hold on it to get it when it becomes available. To sign up for this tool, you need to go to the Reader's Corner page and click on the Author Alert box to sign up.

Author Alerts

Now that you know we have the tools in our toolbox to find new reads, why not use them? Get on your smartphone and sign up for one or two or more and start exploring what is new out there!

July is Cell Phone Courtesy Month

It's one of the greatest inventions of our time, but as the cell phone has developed into the smartphone, it's also one of the greatest distractions, too. July is National Cell Phone Courtesy Month, an event founded in 2002 with the intent of making cell phone users more respectful of their surroundings.

In honor of National Cell Phone Courtesy Month, here are the top tips to become more courteous on your smartphone:

- Put your smartphone away when having dinner with friends. Don't even look at it, ever. Put people first, technology second.
- Never place your phone (or your handbag, keys, sunglasses or anything you can't eat) on the table while you are having dinner. Keep it on silent mode in your pocket or in your handbag. Keep it in your lap, only if you're waiting for a very important call.
- Unless you're a doctor on call, keep your cell phone out of sight at all times. Better yet, give yourself a break and keep it in your car.
- If you have to take a call, excuse yourself from the table and find a place away from other diners to carry on your conversation. P.S. A public restroom is not a private place.
- The only time it's permissible to pull out your phone is for brief picture taking or for showing pictures of a cute baby or pet. Show the photo to everybody at the table so no one feels excluded.
- Wait until you get home or get in your car to post pictures on Facebook, Twitter or Instagram.
- If everyone needs to know the answer to a perplexing trivia question, one person is permitted to Google. Put the phone away as soon as you have an answer.

At the library, we understand that cell phones and smartphones are wonderful tools for learning and even reading and we don't want to keep people from using their devices for searches and downloads but if you receive a call while in the library, we do request that you step out into the lobby to have your conversation. Doing that will first, stop everyone else from hearing your business and second it will stop other people from getting irritated by any noise during your conversation. If you do need help with some of the apps or new downloads on your phone, please feel free to ask for a one on one tech help session with one of us.

Read It B4 U C It: To All the Boys I Loved Before

What if you wrote letters that were never meant to be seen by the people you wrote them to? What would you do if those letters got mailed out and those people DID read what you wanted to say to them but just couldn't? This is how Lara Jean's story starts!

Lara Jean writes letters to all of the boys she has ever had crushes on but never sent them to the boys keeping those thoughts of her unabated love to herself where it was safe. Until one day at school when one of her crushes asks her about something that he could have only known about if he read her letter. This starts a chain of events that will change her life and theirs forever.

"To All the Boys I Loved Before" will begin airing on Netflix beginning August 17, 2018. Before getting the ice cream and the cookie dough ready for the binge-a-thon, why not check out the trilogy to meet the characters before they come into your living room? This series isn't just for teen girls waiting for their first kiss but also for the women out there who have always wondered "what if?"

Parents!

School starts soon!

Why not get them reading at home with some ebooks with TUMBLEBOOKS?

You need:

- Library Card
- Computer or Tablet
- Internet Access
- A love for reading

International Children's Digital Library

Have you ever tried to read a book that was not written in the language you speak? If you have not, could you imagine how hard that must be especially for a child? The Marion & Ed Hughes Public Library has put a link on the Booklists for Kids page under the Reader's Corner tab (<https://www.ned.lib.tx.us/mehpl-readers-corner-1>) to the International Children's Digital Library.

The International Children's Digital Library (ICDL) is a five year project funded primarily by the National Science Foundation (NSF) and the Institute for Museum and Library Services (IMLS) to create a digital library of international children's books. This five-year research project, created in collaboration with the Internet Archive and conducted by the University of Maryland has five primary goals:

- To create a collection of more than 10,000 books in at least 100 languages that is freely available to children, teachers, librarians, parents, and scholars throughout the world via the Internet;

- To collaborate with children as design partners in the development of computer interface technologies that support children in searching, browsing, reading, and sharing books in electronic form;
- To better understand the concepts of rights management and "fair use" in a digital age;
- To evaluate the impact that access to digital materials may have on collection development and programming practices in school and public libraries;
- To develop a greater understanding of the relationship between children's access to a digital collection of multicultural materials and children's attitudes toward books, libraries, reading, technology, and other countries and cultures.

The materials included in the collection reflect similarities and differences in cultures, societies, interests, and lifestyles of peoples around the world. The collection's focus is on identifying materials that help children to understand the world around them and the global society in which they live.

The collection has two primary audiences. The first audience is children ages 3-13, as well as librarians, teachers, parents, and caregivers who work with children of these ages. The second audience is international scholars and researchers in the area of children's literature.

The library hopes that including this digital collection will give more children and adults access to more books in their native languages to enjoy. As of 2017, the ICDL has almost 5000 books digitized in 59 different languages for children and adults to explore. Why not do a search to see what types of books are available?
