Just a little of the unexpected:

- A book detector in the remodeled library
- A clock without a face
- The Performing Arts Center
- Pot holes in the student parking lots and new teacher’s parking lots
A theme is an idea or subject that is repeated or presented in a number of ways throughout a piece of work to unify it. To produce a theme for a yearbook there are three procedures. First, think of what makes the year different from the years before. Second, express the year’s uniqueness in the theme. Third, find different ways to show the theme throughout the book.

Therefore, members of the yearbook staff got together and developed a theme for the 1999-2000 yearbook. First, the staff thought about how this year was different from other years. The more the staff thought about this year’s differences, a realization came that there were definitely noticeable changes in the school. For instance, the school now has the new Performing Arts Building, new carpet, new computer labs, internet service provided for everyone, new classes, new teachers, and a new library format with a book detector; and everywhere in the school there seemed to be something unexpected.

Who would expect the school to change so much during the few months of summer break? With all that in mind, the staff moved on to the next procedure: coming up with an actual statement for a theme and tying the theme statement in with the year. Since the school was massively different, the book also had to be different. That is when the theme, “It’s Not What You Expect,” was conceived.

With the second step accomplished, it was on to the last and final step, presenting the theme in different forms and fashions throughout the book. This step was a little trickier than the previous two. Even though the changes in the book should be easily noticed, they are listed, in no particular order, just so readers do not assume they are mistakes.

This yearbook has four combined sections replacing the six in past years. The color pages, usually found in the first couple of pages, are now placed in the middle of the book. Also, most books start with the least number advancing forward; well, not this one. The page numbers are counted from the highest number working down to one. In the first two sections of the book, flipped just right, there are stick figures that move about. Further, the first section headlines are vertical instead of horizontal, and the second section has backward letters in the headlines. The third section, it’s pretty obvious, is totally upside down. “Seniority first” does not apply in this book. Ninth grade pictures are first, working toward the senior pictures. To those who are used to being alphabetically challenged and always mentioned last, try being mentioned first in this book because the names are listed from Z-A. Also, Freshmen and Junior Varsity team pages are placed before the Varsity pages for a little change in the line up, and staff members found their own way to express the theme on the pages they designed.

Thus, the staff successfully went through all three steps of the theme process. The members found out what sets this year apart, applied it to a theme, and found numerous and different ways to present it throughout the book. So, with the theme complete, the book is also complete. The staff hopes you enjoy it.

Noticed anything different yet? Turn a few pages because that is what will happen. Warning: “It’s Not What You Expect.”
Changes to the school help make the year successful

The new Millennium brought numerous changes for the school. The school was in desperate need of more space, more rooms and a place for the drama department to “play.” New activities for clubs as well as SAT and TAAS preparation classes were added to the curriculum.

Saws were turning for construction workers during the summer. They were busy adding two new computer labs, installing a theft protection book detector in the remodeled library, placing new (not green) carpet down and putting the finishing touches on the New Performing Arts Center.

Construction was not the only thing happening around the campus. Many new courses were placed into full swing. Webmastering and Internet working technology (also academy) I and II were classes in which Web page design was stressed as well as designing, configuring and installing computer networks. Other classes were preparing students for college. PSAT Prep and SAT Prep classes were made to help get students ready for the PSAT and the SAT tests needed for college.

While students were preparing for their college tests they were also able to take classes such as Environmental Systems, Marine Science, Geology and Meteorology. In the past, Geology and Marine Science were offered as semester courses but the changes brought about a combined class and added Meteorology making the course an entire year long.

Not only was the school undergoing academic changes, with added classes and space for those classes, but at the same time the school’s clubs were changing. The Future Homemakers of America (FHA) changed the organization’s name nationwide to Family, Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA). They changed the name in order to make the organization non-biased toward either gender. Teen Team City, a new service organization, also formed to join the other groups on campus in having a positive influence on students and others throughout the community.

All around, the students and faculty were busy planning and following through with changes needed to propel students into the new Millennium.

"Each of us have our own personal memories, but as a class we have witnessed the opening of the Performing Arts Center and wept at the loss of our teacher and friend Regina Cowles."

"To my friends and everyone I spent time with— I will always remember you."

"MY PERSONAL WORDS OF WISDOM FOR YOU: ALWAYS BASE YOUR SUCCESS ON PERSONAL HAPPINESS."

"Regardless of which Honor Society cut we made or how many "dollarships" we received, we still graduate tonight as fellow classmates."
"As members of the class of 2000, we were the children of the twentieth century, and we will be the young adults of the twenty-first century."

"However, after tonight, many of us will leave these familiar surroundings and explore new horizons."

"Our possibilities are limitless."

"From this point on, our future decisions, the same decisions that develop individuality and character, will be ours and ours alone, good or bad."

"Now for all of you who have mentally drifted far away from here during my magnificent speech and ignored all the five-syllable words, which have been a part of our education, my message is simple - Just be yourself."

"Brevity is the key to communication."
This was the first time in 15 years that Nederland DECA students advanced to national competition.

DECA is 54 years old.

Although DECA once stood for something, it is no longer an acronym.

Keisha Scarborough and Wesley Linder, seniors, advanced to nationals in retail merchandising (management level).

Chad Rivett, senior, advanced to state in General Marketing.

DECA nationals were held in Louisville, Kentucky where approximately 12,000 students from around the world participated.

DECA is the only student organization working to attract young people to careers in marketing, management and entrepreneurship.

The group waits to load into the bus. Every year Ned and Company takes their show on tour around the state.

After winning state, Keisha Scarborough and Wesley Linder, seniors, along with Skylar Williams, a PN-G student, realize the next phase is nationals in Kentucky.

Sporting a new look, Keisha Scarborough and Wesley Linder, seniors, try on hats for the Kentucky Derby. Both students attended nationals in Louisville for retail merchandising.

Chow down! Nancy Martin and Brandon Brammer, juniors, enjoy a nice dish of chicken teriyaki in a Korean restaurant in New York.

Although it is raining, the journalism staff awaits a long day of walking in New York City.
Mmm...look at all that candy! DECA students raise money with the Frito Lay and candy stand every year to finance their competition trips.

Wesley Linder, senior, made it to DECA nationals in the management level of retail merchandising. He won a national scholarship from Sears for his work.

With all the hard work DECA students put in, it is time for a break. They took a field trip to Katy Mills Mall for a shopping spree.

Zzz...Zzz...The journalism students sleep in a St. Louis airport before boarding a plane headed to New York. They were in New York April 20-24.

1, 2, 3... band students stand somewhat single file for a head count before loading onto the bus. The band took a field trip to South Padre Island.
Justin Rice, senior, retrieves his egg after it was dropped from a fire truck. Each egg was dropped from the truck and had to remain intact.

Natalie Pardue, junior, cuts open her contraption holding her egg after being dropped. "My egg survived all of its tests," said Pardue.

Mr. Clean, Mr. Clean, Duy Nguyen, senior, keeps the room clean.

The pain, the horror. Matt Dieren, junior, picks fascia from his "dissection buddy."

Tamara Tillery, junior, and Jyothi Kondre, senior, inspect the mid-region of their colossal kitty.

Stephanie Parish, senior, brings her egg for a test before being dropped from the sky.

Bombs away! Jeff Gribman, senior, shoots a penny from his catapult.
Biology II, Physics, and Chemistry II each had experiments that students took part in during the year. The cat lab seemed to be the biggest hit, however, other experimentations, such as the egg test and the catapult, were also favorites.

Certain criteria was required for each situation. For instance, the egg drop had strict requirements.

"Although it had no weight requirements, my contraption had to be a particular size," said Natalie Pardue, junior.

The eggs were dropped from a fire truck’s ladder and the catapults were built by the students themselves. The cats, however, were self-explanatory.

"Is this a game of spin the bottle or what?" Michael Molina, senior, puckers up for a kiss from senior Anna Taylor’s cat.

Biology II students dissect cats every year. Cats are used because their anatomy is most like that of a human, and internal features are much more clear.
English research papers are done every year and there are always those students who put it off until the last minute. There are also the ones who do it and don’t waste any time.

“I’m a big procrastinator and I never do my work on time, and like a dope I stayed up about 24 hours,” said Jessica Booth, junior. Booth stayed up all day before due date with Lauren Perez, junior, and studied. They took breaks to go and get their hair cut, and to get a folder at the store.

“I did better than I thought I would,” said John Fang, junior, along with Rosie Tran and Vi Nguyen, who started early on their papers.

“I am very pleased with the overall outcome of my students’ research papers. It is obvious that they exerted a great deal of effort and energy,” said Mrs. Linda Parish, junior English teacher.

While searching in a book, Shannon Yoes, senior, wrote down notes she needs to use on her paper.

Heather Barnes, junior, looks for the right book to get information from. In the library, students researched their topics and recorded all of the information on cards.

Juniors Huong Le, Rollin Thrift, Jessica Brown and Kris Luce showed their imagination through “A” projects.

Juniors, Heather Deason, Shawn Cauthen, Phillip Thomas, Katie Laser, Amanda Poley, and Kristen Stegmoller, show off their “A” projects. They have spent six weeks working on them.
Junior Kristin Michna asks Mrs. Linda Parish questions about her research paper. "It prepared me for college and it took a lot of time putting it all together," said Michna.

Juniors, Cathy Vo, Kristin Michna, Lauren Perez, Robbie Barnes, Megan Turk, Iza Ares, Joy Krueger, and Vi Nguyen spent weeks working on their "A" projects from "The Scarlet Letter."

Sara Beth Cole, senior, checks her book titles. She also worked on information and index cards to complete her paper.

Robbie Barnes, junior, works on his research paper at the library. Juniors and seniors have six weeks to do their research papers.

Working silently in the library, Cathy Vo, junior, writes down information on her research paper.
Senior Scott Willis, President of FFA, enjoys feeding his cows after school.

Chad Rebert, senior, concentrates on holding metal rods as a fellow classmate cuts them.

Business Professionals of America (BPA) officers: Mandi Feldschau, Ashley Carter, Megan Adams, Kristin Thompson, Lindsey Purser, Lindie Drawhorn, Amber Hemby, Angela Read, seniors.

BPA members visited children in the hospital, on Halloween Day, to make the children feel special since they didn’t get to go trick or treating.

Mrs. Richey’s marketing Co-op class got to work by painting for one of their projects.
1. FFA raised over 300 chickens.
2. Scott Willis, senior, raised 13 cows.
3. Criminal Justice got new bikes to ride in order to do their jobs.
4. Vocational classes had a chance to learn a variety of skills

"I feel honored that my friends believe I am able enough to take on such a big responsibility and be their leader," said Lindie Drawhom, BPA President, senior.

"I hate walking to the vocational building. It is so far out there and I'm always tardy," said Bailey Green, sophomore, Accounting Club Historian.

In Art I Katie Nectom, sophomore, does one of her many projects.

Mrs. Wagner’s Landscaping Design class learns how to plant potatoes, in the hot sun.

The auto mechanic class gets to work on senior Clint Dungan’s vehicle.
The University Interscholastic League offers the most comprehensive academic competitive program in the nation with twenty-two individual activities. Nederland High School participated in each of these activities, and seven students advanced to the Regional Meet at Sam Houston State University. NHS also had three alternates and six second-place teams from the District 20 4A Academic Meet. From this, two students, Micah Bynum and Angelique Nguyen, advanced to the State Meet held in Austin at the University of Texas.

Sophomore Angelique Nguyen participated in three academic contests- number sense, calculator and general math-advancing to the Regional Meet in both calculator and general math. She then went on to the State Meet in calculator. Of her experience in Austin, Nguyen said, “I had a great time! I loved singing the UT fight song on the steps of the State Capitol building; I’ll never forget it! I hope I make it to State next year. I still haven’t gone on Sixth Street.”

Senior Micah Bynum participated in two academic contests. He advanced to the Regional and State Meets in current events and issues. Bynum gained the distinction of being the only student at NHS to make it to two state contests for two straight years in a row. At the State Academic Meet, Bynum placed sixth in the state. Of his two years at the State Academic Meet Bynum said, “I really felt special to be at State last year and to be able to return again my senior year. My trips to Austin have been great! I enjoyed the sights, sounds and even the smells of Sixth Street. I hope more NHS students qualify for this experience in the future.”

Seniors Dana Patrick and Matt Orlando take a few last glances at a practice writing prompt before going in to write at a meet in Hampshire - Fannett. Pamela Cotton, Duy Nguyen, and Carlos Cardenas, seniors, and John Long, junior, take a break from the contest to relax, eat and goof off before their next events.

Taking time out of their busy schedules to strike a pose, senior Micah Bynum and sophomore Angelique Nguyen, the only students to make it to state, smile for the camera, along with their teachers Gay Gaston and Jenny Larocca.

Proudly smiling, Bynum and Nguyen take one last look at their good luck sign before heading to Austin for the UIL State Meet.
Reporting for Big Ned Network is Kacie Brentlinger, sophomore. She, along with many other students, worked hard each day to put together BNN, a daily show viewed by the students to give various announcements.

Cameraman Rick Neely, sophomore, practices his camera skills while taping a show.

Seniors Brad Sullivan and Dina Adams smile and greet NHS with a “Good morning!” before proceeding with the announcements for the day.

Sophomores Jamie Ramirez and Kacie Brentlinger give the announcements for the day while Rick Neely, sophomore, carefully tapes the day’s show.
Journalists have what it takes to get the job done

A typical afternoon for a yearbook member went something like this: from the moment the bell rang, work was done up until the staffers’ stomachs couldn’t take any more emptiness. With food in mind, either all in the room left to eat, or one helpless soul was sent to bring it back. After the food run was over, and Orlando, the janitor, had let the food bearer back through the school’s locked doors, everyone ate and relaxed, for there was still a good four hours of work to be done.

“Yearbook is a thin line between love and hate,” said Breanne Osgood, senior. “Some days you hate it, and some days you don’t. On the days you hate it you realize you’re in too deep to get out.

Following the “no excuses” philosophy of journalism, Editor Christie Waite learned the meaning of the words through experience.

“I’ll bend your fingers back until they break,” said Waite. “I’ll do anything to get the book done, even if I have to walk all over people to do it. That’s my job.”

Taking skills they learned from previous editor, Michael James, Waite and Mullican organized, designed, and delegated various jobs in order to complete the yearbook.

Matt Orlando, junior, bows down in forgiveness to Christie Waite, senior.

Amy Cacioppo, freshman, sorts through the class pictures and identifies the students.

Orlando works diligently on the Varsity football page.

Joanie Chappell, junior, making her final touches for the second deadline.
Dana Patrick, senior, prepares for a long day of content writing. Patrick’s dedication and nerves were tested many times during each deadline.

Senior Sports editor Matt Orlando listens intently to the wise words of comedic legend Gallagher. Orlando interviewed Gallagher when the comedian came to town in January.

Making last minute adjustments senior Co-Editors-in-Chief Sarah Dupre and Dana Patrick offer advice to freshmen Hanna Long and Becca Trainer. Many corrections and changes were made to make a good story a great one.
Long after all of the doors were locked and all of the janitors went home, one light remained constant, putting out a small glow throughout the otherwise dark hallway. Suddenly, the silence was broken by a loud “thud” coming from the Journalism room. The odd sound was that of the Bulldog Beat editors simultaneously hitting their heads on a table after each of them caught a glimpse of the time and realized that it was no longer Tuesday afternoon, but 1:30 on Wednesday morning.

The Beat staff endured many problems on a regular basis, such as failure to study for that “big test.” They also had to come to terms with the fact that for the next week, while on deadline, the Journalism room was their home and the other staff members were nothing more than the world’s most annoying relatives.

“You get tired of spending so much time with the same people during deadline,” said senior Co-Editor-in-Chief, Dana Patrick. “It’s different when we are hanging out with each other. We leave newspaper problems at school.”

As to be expected with stress and lack of sleep, Beat staff members were no strangers to uncontrollable laughter and the occasional hallucination. At this point in time, they remembered that they were only human and pulling an “all nighter” would be out of the question. So they turned to the next logical solution and decided to go home, get four hours of sleep, and meet back at the school at six in the morning to finish the newspaper.

“It’s really tough being up here until the crack of dawn for a straight week on deadline,” said senior Co-Editor-in-Chief, Sarah Dupre. “It can take a lot out of you.”

The Newspaper class was not all stress and lack of sleep. The last issue of the paper came out in early May and the staffers were finally able to relax after a year of hard work.

Concentrating on the task at hand, Bradley looks over some contest information before competing at the Hampshire-Fannett meet. Bradley spent three years on staff.

Frantically searching for answers, junior Feature editor Samantha Osgood hopes that someone can help her figure out one of the many questions that plague her daily.

Beth Burroughs senior, and Amy Powell, sophomore, work on the Entertainment section of the Bulldog Beat. “I enjoy being Entertainment editor because I am able to be involved in the things I love to do,” said Burroughs.
Proving time and time again that hard work and dedication pays off, the US2U staff went to Sam Houston State University to compete in a broadcast journalism contest. The show took an Honorable Mention Award, beating out the best competition in the state including several 5A schools.

Senior sports anchor/producer Matt Orlando also won Honorable Mention for his performance on the sports section of the show. However, awards did not mean everything. Senior Lowery Woodall was back with his new “Mornin’ Wood” segment which took him to different levels, from the football team to being principal for a day and even taking on the task of being a school security guard.

“Basically anybody from any grade level could be on the segment at any time,” said Woodall.

Staff seniors Jeremy Batchelor, Kevin Bradley, Keri Boudreaux, Matt Orlando, Breanne Osgood and Lowery Woodall produced the traditional “Senior Show” for US2U and then left behind the program to the new leaders and staff.

Senior Matt Orlando takes a quick break after a budget meeting. This was Matt’s third year on staff.

Senior Breanne Osgood sleeps on junior Mandy Tyrrell during a journalism convention. This was Osgood’s first year as producer and Tyrrell’s first year as a reporter.

Jeremy Batchelor, senior, focuses on a shot for a news story. Batchelor was executive producer of the show.
Junior Mandy Tyrrell concentrates on editing as part of her tryout for executive producer. She was also elected Bulldog Spirit for 2000-2001.

Nancy Martin, junior, laughs as she plans the script for the upcoming show. This was Martin's fourth year as anchor.

Sophomore Shaun Hebert shows his true colors at a journalism convention. Hebert served as a cameraman and reporter.

Senior Keri Boudreaux reports on a news story for a weekly show. Boudreaux was the only senior reporter.

Sophomore Ashley Serres tapes a segment for the weekly show. Serres was chosen as News Producer for 2000-2001.
Presentation Is Everything

Acadec and Forensics make presentation work

Academic Decathlon: It’s Not Just A Test

Facts:
• 2000 team placed third in its category and the super quiz
• Bronze medals to Anthony Britt and Beth Burroughs in Language and Literature and Burroughs in Economics
• Silver medal to Joshua Shirley in Math
• Scholastic Level: Bronze medal to Jessica Maxwell in Interview and a silver medal to Sarah Dupre in Interview
• Honors Level: Bronze medal to Kevin Bradley in Essay Competition

Forensics: It’s Not Just Debate

Facts:

"Times have changed and women are now able to have jobs so men and women can have equal responsibilities in their house. Therefore men can cook their own dinner."

Andrea Hebert
Senior

"He [Michael Bellows] threw a handful of powdered sugar at me so I threw a handful back at him. He threw some more and I hit his hand in the air and sugar went everywhere."

Shane Coussou
Senior

Trick or Treat? Senior Dustin Lesner participates in the Halloween dinner for the elderly.

Concentrating on a seam, junior Andy Arnold paces himself so he won’t cut his finger.
Daniel Wallace, senior, tastes applesauce to make sure no ingredients are missing. This was one of the many dishes Wallace prepared.

Senior Andrea Hebert cautiously focuses on the moving needle while sewing a pattern. Hebert was also in band and student council.

Seniors Lacie Turner and Andrea Hebert "blow off steam" while cooking during class.
HOSA members Cindy Rice, senior, and Angie Sinclair, senior, learn how to clean a patient’s mouth. In order to be nurses’ aides, students had to learn this procedure.

Cory Freeman, senior, helps Crystal Hight, senior, into a hospital bed. The HOSA II students learned to do this in the beginning of their senior year.

Jamie Teltschick, junior, and HOSA I member, practices taking someone’s blood pressure.

Crystal Morrison, Shauntel Duhon, Lauren Perez, Mark Jones, Dana Owler, Amanda Babin, Crystal Hight, Cory Freeman, Haley Murphy and Cindy Rice gather around after a meeting.
HEALTHY HOSA FACTS

There are over 60 members of HOSA I but only 12 - 15 make HOSA II.

The HOSA II students work at Mid-Jefferson Hospital 4 out of 5 days a week.

During their senior year, HOSA II students become certified nurses aides.

HOSA I students learn the basics of the medical career.

HOSA sponsors two blood drives every year.

Every year HOSA II and some members of HOSA I take a trip to Houston to tour the medical center and observe various surgeries.

Mrs. Marlena Grant is the sponsor of HOSA I and II.

Crystal Hight, senior, donates blood at the annual fall blood drive. This past year 101 pints of blood were donated.

Juniors Tawne' Glaze and Crystal Morrison talk with Tammy Ohleshy as she donates blood. During the blood drive the HOSA I students walked donors back to class, helped with paper work and comforted donors.

Hosa II member Josh Haynes, senior, demonstrates how a patient should be positioned on the bed. HOSA II students had to learn this in order to work at the hospital.

Seniors Cory Freeman, Anna Taylor, Crystal Hight and Josh Haynes model the proper wear for surgery. Through HOSA, students were able to observe many surgeries.
Drama students are known for their sometimes outlandish behavior. This comes in handy when they are acting in front of audiences. These students have to be confident when they are putting on plays such as "A Midsummer Night's Dream," a classic play by William Shakespeare.

"My favorite part of the play was doing the fight scene with the four lovers, although sometimes I came home with bruises," said Nancy Martin, junior, who played Hermia.

The play, performed by the Theatre Production Class, was set in the sixties.

"It's exciting taking something like Shakespeare and putting it in a different time period," said Brook Mathis, the play director.

Assisting Mathis was Kim Williams, technical director. Together, they combined all of the Tech Theatre production classes into one class. Certain freshman were given a special chance to audition for the play.

"I was very impressed. The groups worked together wonderfully," said Williams.

Jay Derek Jacobs, Leslie Robinson, Daren Frasier, Nicholas Meyers and Dori Bergeron are "acting crazy" in the play within the play.

Jeremy Long, Demetrius, Craig Simpson, Lysander, Nancy Mard, Hermia, and Sandra Stafford, Helena, struggle to win each other's love.
The Thespian Troope 310 stands outside of the Alley Theatre. The group took a trip to see "A View From the Bridge" by Arthur Miller.

The cast of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" comes out for a curtain call and one last word from Puck. "It was really cool because I got to say the last line of the whole play," said Trista Nixon, sophomore.

Trista Nixon, Puck, receives orders from Cort Hightower, Oberon, to go retrieve the purple cupid flower.

The fairies, along with Titania, joke around with a guy who was magically given a donkey head. "We're making fun of the guy with the donkey head," said junior Casey Diaz, a fairy named Cobweb.

These four lovers duke it out in an "anything goes" brawl. Hermia wants Lysander. Lysander and Demetrius both want Helena. Helena is confused because she has never been loved.
Working Together To Better The School

Members of Student Council work hard to get the job done

STUDENT COUNCIL DOES MORE THAN YOU EXPECT...

* Homecoming
* Stadium clean-ups
* Collections for needy at Christmas and Thanksgiving
* Red Ribbon Week
* Teacher Appreciation Week
* School elections
* Community Service
* Powder Puff
* Prom

* Student Council was also recognized for the fourth consecutive year at the state level in four projects:
  - Outstanding
  - DASH
  - Pride and Patriotism
  - Energy/Environment

Sadie Murphy, sophomore, places each star ever so delicately in order to get the pillar looking just right.

With both hands full and up to her elbows in decorations, Brixey Blankenship holds still while yelling for someone to come and help her.

Freshman Jamie Aucoin is busily taping down stars for prom. Why all the stars, you ask? Well the theme was, after all, “Stars In the Night.”

Like a fairy with her fairy dust, Iza Arce, junior, sprinkles each table with tiny stars to add to the glamour.

Senior Student Council members pose for yet another photo at the state convention. The annual convention was held on March 28, 2000, in Austin, Texas.

Lauren Perez, junior, steadily works with her trusty hole puncher on the tedious job of stringing tiny stars across walls and pillars.
Juniors Amanda Howell and Shelli Fernandez concentrate hard as they frantically tape stars together for the big night.

Senior council members got together for a quick group shot outside a leadership workshop that they attended.

Senior Marie Fontenot and junior Brixey Blankenship work on prom decor.

Senior Jana Furby "reaches for the stars" and holds them in just the right place to glue them down.
The Golden Pride Marching Band had a productive year. They worked long and hard about an hour and a half after school, and nearly three or four hours a day during summer band in August.

"Band has been very fun the past six years I have been in it. I know next year will be even more fun as a senior," said Justin Ramirez, junior. This year wasn’t just the last year for the seniors, but for another important person to the band as well. After 34 years of teaching, Mr. Val Rose decided to retire. Mr. Rose will always be remembered for the discipline he instilled and the many contests won during his tenure as head band director.

"Next year will be challenging, but we’ll try to be even better than this year," said Kris Luce, junior. Golden Pride band members have much to live up to in the future.

Balancing on his head, Kris Luce, junior, concentrates on not falling in front of thousands of people.

Dean Denby, senior, plays his clarinet while marching during halftime. Denby was also a part of Nederland’s jazz band.

In her last year of band, Sherry Willey, senior, plays the school song. Willey was the co-president of the band council.

Being one of the five drummers in the drumline, Chris Bares, freshman, plays at a playoff game. Bares was one of the few freshman who got to be on the line.

The drumline consisted of two bass drummers, five snare drummers and a quads player. They played a medley of drum beats composed by Kris Waldrep, senior.
Before their last annual spring band pageant performance, Andrea Hebert, Amber Hailey, Sara Peacock, Hilary Hebert, and Amber Meyers, seniors, take time to "practice."

Christian Deitz, Katie Smith, Christine Myers, freshman, and Jason Rollinson, senior, take a break at the annual spring band pageant. Rollinson was in the symphonic band for four years.

Goofing off at one of the games, Angela Sosa, senior, Jay Walker, and Ryan Daws, juniors, make a boring time at the stands seem fun. Sosa, Walker, and Daws all played the trumpet during marching and concert seasons.
Dressed in their fifties attire, choir students go to the perfect drive-in restaurant after the spring performance.

Kristyn Davis and Rachelle Corrand, sophomores, sing “Mr. Sandman” at the concert.

Ben Duplechain, junior, sings “Chances Are” at the performance. This was the first year for the choir’s spring concert to be held at the Performing Arts Center.

A large group of choir girls sing “Sincerely” at the concert.
Cory Mitchell, freshman, sings "Hound Dog" at the choir's spring concert. The concert was performed with a fifties theme.

The entire choir sings for the Wesley United Methodist Church. The choir holds an annual performance at the church.
The best times in Ned & Co. were the times when everyone did their fair share and we got awesome results, said Holly Neumann, senior.

On the drums is Dustin McDonald, freshman, and on the guitar is Zack Feemster, junior, playing diligently for the singers. Michelle Campbell, junior, concentrates on reading the music while playing on the keyboard. The band plays a big part in Ned & Co.

The performers are about to get on the bus to leave the school and begin their annual tour.
With smiles on their faces, Ned & Co. puts on an outstanding performance. This was their first show in the New Performing Arts Center.

Tess Austin, sophomore, plays around while the group eats at Medieval Times. Every year while on tour the singers find time to eat there.

The girls perform while the guys sit this number out.

Singing a duet together are sophomores Matt Wallace and Tess Austin. It is the guy's turn to show the audience what they can do.
Although some students may think the Westernaires do nothing after football season, they practice during the spring semester for competitions in New Orleans, Galveston and Denton.

* The Westernaires held Spring Revue on April 28th and 29th. April 29th was the last time the 1999-2000 line danced together.

* The Westernaires got to hold one of the first public events in the new Performing Arts Center.

Westernaires officers lift Captain Jamie McQueen, senior, in their stunt. Although McQueen's hat fell slightly, she kept on smiling because "the show must go on."

Carmen Rios, junior, shows off her perfect jump split to the student body at the Homecoming pep rally. The Westernaires perfected their jump splits all summer to be ready for football season.
Junior line member Stefanie Gregg and director Beverly Minaldi celebrate after a great halftime performance. Minaldi retired when the school year ended after being director of the Westernaires for 33 years.

The Westernaires perform during the PN-G halftime show. The Westernaires did a special routine as a tribute to the Stars and Stripes.

The Westernaire line ends their performance in the Astrodome. The Westernaires got to perform in the Dome twice this season thanks to the great effort by the Bulldog football team.
All week they worked on practicing to perform for the Friday pep rally in front of the whole school, and to perform in front of all of Nederland at the Friday night Bulldog game.

The twirlers and flags attended a summer camp, during July, for a week. They got up at about 8:00 a.m. and learned their halftime routines until 5:00 p.m. The average after school practice for the twirlers and flags was about three hours per day. Sometimes they practiced during their band class. "We had fun our last year. I'll never forget all the good times and lots of good memories," said Sara Peacock, senior Goldenette.

Both twirlers and flags had four field routines, one track routine, and the fight song, school song and "Conquest," the song that was played while the team ran out to the field. Meagan Crain, sophomore Golden Silk, said, "This year was fun for my first year on the line. It also gave me the opportunity to make new friends and to have self-confidence to perform in front of big crowds."

Ashley Thibodeaux, junior, twirls to "Fried Green Beans." That is just one of the four routines they performed.

Standing at attention is Thibodeaux, junior, Jennifer Cawley, senior, and Mindy Duplan, sophomore. The band held a pre-game halftime show, and the Golden Silks attended.

Patiently waiting for the fight song, Vanessa Creader, junior, twirls at the playoff game. Creader, Co-drum major, was prepared to take on the role as head drum major for the following year.

Natasha Rone, senior, leads the band during a halftime performance. In the summer, Rone attended Drum major camp, along with Creader, for a week.

Sophomores, Brianne Bourque, Meagan Crain and Duplan do the motions of the fight song. "We have fun at games and flag corp. is a lot of fun," said Bourque.
At a practice, Crain, Duplan, Thibodeaux, Joy Krueger and captain Amanda Posey, stand at parade rest. They waited until the band was settled to sit.

Performing the school song, at the beginning of every pep rally, is a tradition. "It was fun being a twirler this year, and I had a great time," said Amber Hailey, senior.

Dina Adams, twirler, and Jennifer Cawley, flag, take a break from performing. Both the twirlers and flags performed routines at the Homecoming bonfire.

The 2000 senior Goldenettes attend the Homecoming pep rally for their last time.
The cheerleaders "jump start" the crowd.

Three squads of cheerleaders and the Golden Guardians worked together to make the pep rallies and games an experience to remember. The cheerleaders went to the Southwest Texas cheerleading camp in the summer where they not only worked hard but also had fun. "We stole the freshmen's bloomers and had water balloon fights in the dorms at night," said Jennifer Perello, sophomore. The Golden Guardians helped with stunts and skits, and they helped load and unload the bus before and after the games. The JV and Freshmen cheerleaders performed in many pep rallies and the playoff games. "Cheering this year was such a great experience, and I had fun with everyone on the squad," said Cassi Henley, senior.

The world experienced one of the greatest scares with the uncertain outcome of the much anticipated Y2K bug, but on New Year’s Eve, as the nation waited in silence, the unexpected happened, nothing at all. The uncertainties and unexpectedness of high school life can at times seem to reflect those of the world.

For the seniors, the overwhelming thoughts of life after graduation soon set in just weeks into the school year. They were faced with life changing decisions such as college, occupations, and knowing that in time they must leave home and learn to take care of themselves.

High school life also affected the town, starting with the traditional student led prayer. As the football players lined up along the sidelines with helmets in hand, the stadium was quiet, waiting for the familiar greeting of “Let us pray.” Instead they were met with an uneasy, bone chilling “moment of silence.” Students, unsure of what might happen, defied the court ruling and led a prayer from down on the field, as their parents, many of whom were from a generation built on student protest, watched their children take a stand for their beliefs.

As the football season continued, the Dogs dominated the competition in all of their games, going undefeated after beating LC-M in the final regular season home game. During this game, however, the NHS journalists, who roam the sidelines every week, missed their first game in three years. The reason...two nights before, the journalism students learned that their mentor and friend, Mrs. Regina Cowles, had passed away after a heroic two year fight with cancer. Although difficult, the journalists then went back to the sidelines to do the job Mrs. Cowles taught them the years before.

The next week, the Dogs played PN-G for the district championship. Fans slept outside in front of the office, while trying to stay warm from the cold November air. The next morning, the line stretched halfway around the school. Those who were lucky enough to get tickets to the sold out showdown at the Reservation, witnessed the Dogs lose their first game, but they still became Co-District Champions with the Indians. While the city was entranced with the success of the football team, both the Boys and Girls Cross Country team started making headlines of their own, as they advanced all the way to the state meet with the Boys’ team finishing 8th and the Girls’ team finishing 11th.

As the Playoffs got underway, the football team hosted the Ozen Panthers in the opening round with a commanding victory. The Dogs were Dome bound for the second year in a row, and played the Jacksonville Indians for the third straight year. The Indians were no match for the Dogs’ offense and defense, and soon talk of a possible state championship began circling all over town. The next obstacle would be the toughest, as the Dogs headed to the Dome one more time to battle the number two team in the state, Texas City. The Stingarees put the Dogs’ season to an end, but at halftime Stephanie Brooks, who was involved in a car accident that put her in a coma months before, made an appearance after her fellow Westernaires finished their routine.

Expecting the unexpected has been a phrase that has echoed in the minds of many students in the past and present. The uncertainty that lies ahead will only continue to be a test of strength and courage throughout life.

Student body gets into the pep rallies

Into the air, Varsity cheerleader Emily Foust, junior, descends to the awaiting arms of Eric Hoggins and Brixey Blankenship, juniors, and Jana Furby, senior.

R.J. Hawkins, senior football player, excites the crowd during his captain speech.

Varsity football player Clint Dungan, senior, signs autographs for excited Helena Elementary students. The player went to the elementary school for a pep rally.
The pep rallies stayed with tradition but managed to also bring new and exciting events to students. Each week, the varsity cheerleaders worked together to plan the pep rallies. They spent hours practicing, planning and making decorations for the gym to excite the students. Not only did the cheerleaders work to make the pep rallies exciting, but the band, Goldenettes, Golden Silks, Golden Guardians and Westenaires spent countless hours putting together skits, routines and other performances.

"I liked the pep rallies because they made my classes short, and they were better this year because they involved the students more," said Colt Resch, junior.

Story by Megan Davis and Eric Hoggins.
Excitement, fun, and the thrill of one of the most anticipated games of the season ran through the heads of many Nederland fans. "The Homecoming pep rally has more excitement and tension than other pep rallies," said Kim Garret, junior.

The Bonfire and the Pot and Pan Parade were just two of the pregame rallies. The bonfire gave fans a chance to come out the night before the game and get prepared and peppe for the next night. Safety was also important. The Nederland firefighters have been attending every year to make sure no one gets hurt and the fire does not get out of hand. This safety procedure is carried out to avoid such tragedies as the A&M bonfire accident that occurred in November. "I felt bad about what happened at A&M. I am glad we have so much safety," said Amanda Babin, senior.

Although the annual homecoming parade was "washed out," the Pot and Pan Parade was still held. This parade is held before the bonfire each year, and many dedicated people come out to bang on their pots and pans to show support for the dogs. Overall, the Bonfire and the Pot and Pan Parade were a big success with or without the homecoming parade.

"Members of the freshman class gather together after completing their homecoming float. The students did not get to show off their hard work because of the rain."
Barbay, junior, sits on someone's shoulders to see the bonfire. Many people crowded to see the fire at Bulldog Stadium.

Attention: Flames may burn. The raging bonfire captured the attention of many.

Phillips and Amy Cacioppo, freshmen, bang on their pots and pans. Although the annual Homecoming parade was canceled, the Pot and Pan Parade entertained many.

For safety, a Nederland firefighter makes sure the bonfire does not get out of hand. Every year firefighters come to help out with the festivities.

cheerleaders excitedly perform the fight song in front of Central Middle School before the Pot and Pan Parade.
The Homecoming events began with the Fire and Fury Parade, followed by the Bonfire on Tuesday. Thursday night’s events included a pep rally, students, teachers, and parents spent hours after school decorating the Friday night floats.

The next morning, an exciting and unfulfilled Homecoming Pep Rally began. The rally consisted of energetic routines from the cheerleaders, Golden Girls, Westermarys, and Golden Stills. Principal Steve Fleming gave an opening speech before introducing the football captains, Football McDonald, Nolan Motley, Jason O’Donnell and Shane Cournoyer. Coleman McDonald read a humorous list entitled the “Top Ten Places I’d Rather Be Than At The Pep Rally.”

Unfortunately, the Parade was canceled due to rain, but the other events were still held. The Homecoming game against the Bridge City Cardinals began with pregame events including the Good Sportsmanship League representatives Amanda Posey, Natasha Rains, Summer Smith, and Sherry Holland. Brooks Delaforce, Kodyndra Henderson, and Andreas Hebert.

The Nederland High School Band, along with the Westermarys, gave a crowd pleasing halftime performance. The Doggies went on to destroy the Cardinals 63-0. Following the game, students came back to the caucier to enjoy the Homecoming after game dance.
“EXCITING” is how 1999 Homecoming Queen Jana Furby described her Homecoming Court experience. “It was pretty intense, but I knew no matter what happened that it was still an honor making court,” said Furby.

On October 8, at 7 o’clock in Bulldog Stadium, Jana Furby, senior, escorted by her father Ken Furby, accepted a rose before joining twelve other girls on the field to see who would be crowned Nederland’s queen. “I was excited to make court and even more excited to be crowned queen. It was the biggest honor that I have ever received in my whole life,” said Furby.

Furby, a senior, is the daughter of Ken and Connie Furby. She is a varsity cheerleader, FCA captain, member of National Honor Society, Varsity Soccer, Terrific Nederland Teens, and Student Body Vice President.

“I feel Jana’s many accomplishments and awards helped her win the honor of Homecoming Queen,” said Andrea Cessac, a friend of Furby. This was Jana’s fourth year as a member of Homecoming court.

“It was a dream come true, and it made it even better that my family was there to share it with me,” said Furby.

What is your favorite day?

"Blast to the Past is my favorite because everybody dresses up and it gives us a chance to show how much spirit we have."

"Camo day because Jeremy Long, junior, everybody participates and it's fun. I love camo."

Kennedy Reid, junior

"My favorite day was Blast to the Past. I wore this cool long, flowy dress that was red, white, and blue."

Jennifer Chapman, sophomore

Students' crazy style shows through.

At the PN-G pep rally, everyone is filled with Camo. Senior girls went all out for their last year at NHS.

Nerds never hit the school. Even teachers dressed up to get pumped for the games.
Promed for the day, senior Natasha Rone finds a new way to keep sunglasses handy. Students teased spray paint their hair wild colors for “Crazy Hair Day.”

Senior Lindie Drewhorn does not even notice her hair, while passers-by whisper and laugh. “I just took a Taco Bell Cruiser Cup and pulled my hair up around it,” said Drewhorn.

Nunez, sophomore, sports his seventies attire. From tights to vests, “Blast to the Past” was the day with the most variety.

Many students like Amber Williams, senior, come to school in a crazy outfit each day. She even used artificial plants to add to her camo outfit.

“I dressed up for Camo Day, but my favorite is Blast to the Past because I like Hippies,” said Sarah Hale, junior.

Seniors Jeremy Beachfield and Andrew Rolfe are unique as they dress in A-Team and the “Facts of Life.” They were dressed in gray and one other to slow down and escape from the Civil War.

Second lunch is full of “nerds.” Every year the Student Council votes on the type of days that make up Spirit Week.
As "Cherokee" echoed from across the field, and the final seconds ticked away, the hopes of an undefeated season faded for the Dogs with PN-G winning Mid-County Madness for the second straight year with a 31-8 victory over Nederland.

The week leading up to the November 5th showdown began with Tuesday's ticket sales. Hundreds of die-hard Bulldog fans of all ages braved the bitter November cold to secure their seats. Some brought tents, cots and T.V.'s, while others only had a sleeping bag and the concrete sidewalk to sleep on. All over Mid-County, places of business, from doctors' offices to daycare centers, became grounds for brother vs. brother, friend vs. friend and even husband vs. wife feuds over bragging rights of pride.

The Reservation was overflowing with 14,000 Nederland and PN-G fans. The Indians' potent running game mixed with an equally strong passing attack gave them a 17-0 edge at halftime. From there, the defense stepped in, intercepting quarterback Brad Sullivan three times. The Dogs managed to score once. During the third quarter, senior tailback Ross LaBove leaped into the endzone to put Nederland on the board.

In the end, the most anticipated rivalry in Southeast Texas was settled with a PN-G victory, which forced the previously undefeated Bulldogs to share the district title with their cross town rival.

"We're really happy that technically we won the district title, but we don't like sharing it with PN-G," said junior Ryan Cobb.

Proudly displaying their hometown spirit, the cheerleaders spell out "Nederland" at the PN-G pep rally. The pep rally was the final stage of the emotionally charged "Spirit Week."

During the PN-G pep rally, Mrs. Johnson portrays Saturday Night Live character Mary Catherine Gallagher, while Mr. Fleming mocks PN-G head coach Matt Burnett by trying to recruit this "Superstar."

Taking snaps before game time, seniors Josh Morgan and Brad Sullivan prepare for Mid-County Madness. Practice was a vital part of building the championship team.
Waiting patiently for the gates to open, avid Bulldog fans show their Nederland pride. The Reservation was sold out, overflowing with over 14,000 fans.

In pursuit, junior Ryan Cobb keys on PN-G running back Bo Wortham. The Indians’ running game played a major part in their 31-8 victory.
Senior Sandy Stafford carefully picks an angel from the angel tree. The tree was provided by Student Council.

Each year Central Mall has an angel tree set up for gift donations. Salvation Army provides the tree and other sources of donations.

To start off the holiday season, Galveston Island presents Dickens on the Strand. This event honors the works of Charles Dickens.

Singing his best, sophomore Matt Wallace performs in the Christmas concert. Wallace was also a member of Ned and Company.

The welding group participates in the parade by making their own lighted "float."
This year was the second year for a lighted Christmas parade.

Stephanie Brooks made her first appearance with the Westernaires in the parade.

The sock and mitten tree, provided by FCCLA, received 75 pairs of socks and mittens that were given to the United Board of Missions.

FCCLA raised $240 during the "Give a Dollar" day. This money went to help benefit a local family in need.

Student Council held the annual food drive and all the food donated went to the food bank.
"The game was totally fair and the juniors are sore losers," said Jacquelyn Oberle, senior.

"Juniors didn’t stand a chance from the beginning. We’re just a well-rounded group. All they had was Casey Romero," said Micah Howell, senior.

"It’s not cheating unless you’re caught," said Brad Guidry, senior.

SENIORS

Juniors tackled. The seniors scratched. The seniors cheated. The referees liked the seniors," said Candace McDonald, junior.

"The game was rigged and the juniors dominated baby," said Jessica Booth, junior.

JUNIORS

"Every time we celebrated a touchdown they called it back," said Kara Watson, junior.

"The game was a close one but the seniors were the victors. The score board says it all.

Seniors Jamie May, Alitha Novich, and Shalyn Loventhal smile as they celebrate the victory over the juniors.

Senior Jana Furby runs in the winning touchdown with seconds on the clock. The seniors won 26-24.

Not always true: The seniors did it.
Stefanie Gregg worked up a sweat playing offensive lineman. Gregg took a time out for a drink of water.

Juniors Kayla Borel, Katie Green, Brittainy Davis, and Casey Romero watch as Sheridan Staehlin makes the first touchdown for the seniors.

Senior Kevin Kupper once again steals the penalty flags but this time escapes the penalty. Kupper stole the referees flags at the Vidor game causing a fifteen yard penalty.

Junior Keith Bass possesses his new crown. Bass was declared 99-00 Powder Puff Queen.
"Knowing that the football team chose me as the one who did the most for them means more to me than anything," said Smith. As Varsity Head Cheerleader and Student Body Secretary, senior Summer Smith spent football season not only practicing with the other cheerleaders but also painting signs, making good luck gifts, and decorating lockers, yards and the school.

"I had five locker guys this year," said Smith. "Sometimes it was hard, but I like to do things for other people."

Throughout high school Smith was involved in many organizations such as Student Council, cheerleading, soccer, track, National Honor Society, and Terrific Nederland Teens.

"I really wanted to put everything I had into cheerleading this year. We all wanted to have better pep rallies and to get everyone involved. It was a lot of hard work and stressful, but it was worth it," said Smith.

If she was not participating in the National Honor and Spanish Honor Societies and being a member of the Marketing Club, Keisha Scarborough, the 2000 Miss Nederland, was being a role model for young children.

Although Keisha watched pageants such as Miss Nederland and Miss Teen Texas as a kid, she never thought about doing them when she grew up.

"A friend of mine did the pageant a few years ago and she talked me into it," said Scarborough.

The contest consisted of four stages: Sports Wear, Evening Gown, Talent and the Question and Answer portion. Walking out on stage she said that she was a little nervous but was also having a lot of fun.

"The talent was my favorite portion. It gives you a chance to express yourself and show them who you really are," said Scarborough.

Scarborough sang "Adonai" because she said she believed it was really inspirational.

The eight 2000 Miss Nederland contestants gather together to take a picture before going on stage to hear the announcement of the 2000 Miss Nederland.

Keisha Scarborough smiles radiantly as she takes the first walk down the runway after being crowned.
ORIGINS

The Superficials saw the word "superficial" in an English vocabulary book and thought it was cool.

Headstrong was originally "Headstrong" but Lauren Perez made a shirt with "Headstrung" and the name was changed because they liked it better.

Edgemont was the name of the street of their location of practice.

Members of the band Edgemont, seniors Ernie Knod, Jared Hamilton, Ross Foreman, Josh Mosley, Benji Sticker and Matt Fleming, perform at Out of this World. Edgemont played alternative, blues and old rock-style music.
Mark McIntyre plays his bass guitar during practice. The Superficials practiced an average of three times every two weeks.

Singing one of the band’s alternative-style songs, seniors Kevin Kupper and Curtis Tinsley perform for the crowd. Headstrung also performed for the annual Heritage Festival.

Junior Mark McIntyre, senior Kris Waldrep and junior Zach Feemster find the beat to one of their many alternative-style songs.

Finding it too hot for a shirt, junior Zach Feemster concentrates on his performance. Feemster also sang for the band.
Don't Burst Your Bubble

Sophomore Kim Richardson is surrounded by bubbles from every angle.

Relieving stress together, seniors Miranda Mullican, junior, and Christie Watte, junior, "Sometimes we annoy each other but we always push it all together in the end," said Mullican.

Freshman Amy Cacioppo concentrates on blowing the biggest bubble.

Junior Sarah Hale pays no attention to the bubbles all around her. Hale has participated in Bubble Day for two years.

Junior Brandon Brammer gains senior Keri Boudreaux’s trust while holding her up side down. This was Brammer and Boudreaux’s first experience with Bubble Day.

Seniors Alisha Novich and Shalyn Lowenthal share a bubble wand while they compete for the biggest bubble title.

he days were long, and the classes were far from interesting, as Mrs. Cowles led us through a midsummer’s nightmare at the ILPC summer workshop held on The University of Texas campus in Austin. The rooms were small, the food was bad, and in true Journalism fashion, we managed to get lost on the way home.

Little did we know this was the last time we would ever be together with our teacher, Mrs. Cowles.

The “Austin II” trip marked the end of school for most of us journalists, and at last, the beginning of our summer vacation. The 1998-1999 Pilot was finished only hours before we embarked on our final journey together, and already, plans were being made for the upcoming year. Not only that, The Beat and “US2U” staffs were already chosen, and eager to see what the future would bring for them.

Then, without warning, we heard the news that was as devastating as it was hard to believe. The cancer that had earlier plagued our friend, and mentor, Regina Cowles, had returned, this time occupying her liver and lungs. To make matters worse, she would not be heading the class when the staffs began their work on the first day of school.

Immediately coming to the aid of our teacher was a slightly different set of Journalists than the ones who had arranged the many fund-raisers the year before. Slightly different, but the spirit remained the same, as car washes, spaghetti dinners and other fund-raisers were held to raise money for Mrs. Cowles’ cause. On the side, the various staffs also managed to begin work on their respective projects, with much anticipation of the return of our beloved school teacher.

When news of Mrs. Cowles’ passing first hit, phone calls were immediately made to journalists, new and old, and we instinctively met within our “shoebox” walls around 10:00 p.m. The sidelines of that Friday’s Nederland vs. LC-M football game were all but vacant, as the Journalism staffs missed their first football game in recent memory to mourn the loss of our teacher and friend.

During the days leading up to Mrs. Cowles’ funeral, various Journalism get-togethers were held because we all knew we needed each other’s support to get through the difficult time. We still rely on one another, and with the enthusiastic spirit of a teacher we once knew, we maintain the inner drive inside to do the best job we can do, no matter how difficult, or how stressful it becomes. We know Mrs. Cowles would want us to stick together, because she always worked so hard to keep us that way.

"To make matters worse, she would not be heading the class when the staffs began their work on the first day of school."

What trip to Austin would be complete without a trip to 6th Street? Mrs. Cowles and crew never missed an opportunity to see the sights and sounds of inner city life, and this trip was no different.

Traveling to Austin, Breanne Oswood, senior, Mrs. Cowles and the Journalism staffs enjoyed listening to Mike Tobias play the guitar.
No, you’re not mistaken, the picture at right is of an inner city pigeon. When Mrs. Cowles heard of her trusty editor’s idea to place it in the 1999 yearbook, she took it out, taped it on the chalkboard and wrote a memorable caption for it. Eventually, she forgave him, but never let him forget it. Everyday was a new day with her, and there was no telling what she... would do to make class enjoyable and interesting. There was the “talking apple,” which helped to calm the room, her crazy catch phrases, like “PEZ” and “No Ma’am,” and our personal favorite, “You might want to think about that in O.C.S.” However, she never really did find a “sacrificial lamb” to send there.

...About That In O.C.S!!"

REGINA COWLES will always be remembered by her students as a strong woman, whose concern for the well being of others came along with the role as a journalism teacher. She not only taught them responsibility, but how to live as well.

Prom is the final dance for the class of 2000

Junior Zack Feemster proudly opens the door for his date Amanda Babin, senior.

As tradition has it, most girls kick off their shoes after a few dances.

Graduation is something seniors look forward to from Kindergarten. It may be fun knowing college and adulthood lie ahead but the party afterward, dubbed “Project Celebration,” is a way for seniors to come together and have a blast one last time.

“It was so much fun because it was the last chance for us to spend time with our friends before everyone goes away to college,” said Amanda Steeves, senior.

Project Celebration is not only a time to come together but it is a time to let loose, especially at the gambling tables.

“I had a great time and won some cool prizes that will be really useful away from Nederland. Now I have a gambling problem,” said Craig Simpson, senior.

“Project Celebration rules!” said Trae Branham, senior.
The underclass football teams proved to the district that they could live up to the standards of “Big Dogs.”

The Freshman team had a 6-4 season, while the Junior Varsity team had an 8-2 season.

“The season was good, 6-4. We had a winning season and the kids made a lot of progress,” said freshman coach Kyle Hooper.

The Junior Varsity Dogs had a good, but tough season. The team was cursed with many injuries to starters, forcing the second and third strings to step up. Although these backups were good, the Junior Varsity team had to deal with their first two losses in three years.

“It felt as though we had failed as a team. I wasn’t able to contribute to the team (due to his injury),” said Phillip Thomas, junior.

The Freshman teams had a great season as well. “We were two fumbles away from the district championship,” said freshman coach Hooper.

These young Dogs gave football fans a lot to look forward to in upcoming years.
Renfrow, junior, gets ready for the play to begin. Renfrow played receiver for the Dogs.

Wilson, sophomore, runs a sweep to gain yards. Wilson was the leading rusher for the JV Dogs.

Beckham, sophomore, and Wilson, sophomore, hit their ready stance behind the line prior to the snap. The JV Dogs lost to PN-G 21-6.
There was a new addition to the Dogs this season. It did not come in the form of a player or a coach, but instead a small circular patch which read, “Justin Marvel #61.” The patch was added in remembrance of the Dogs’ former teammate and 1999 graduate Justin Marvel, who was killed in a car accident over the summer. Marvel’s jersey, number 61, was also retired by the school in his honor.

“We all knew him real well from last year, and we figured that the least we could do was to dedicate the season and that gave us a little incentive to play as hard as we could for him,” said senior Scott Mayhew.

The Dogs opened their “marvelous” season with a 42-15 victory over Hamshire-Fannett, which was the beginning of a nine game winning streak. Nederland’s undefeated season was brought to a sudden halt with their 31-8 loss to PN-G. The Dogs looked impressive at the start of the season, but the injury bug hit the Dogs early and often. The injuries started with senior linemen Jeff Gribnau and Ross Foreman, but it did not stop there. They were soon accompanied by junior receiver/kick returner Sean Yoder, and senior defensive standout Jake Moye, to name a few.

Despite their injury plagued season, the Dogs cruised to a 9-1 overall record and became Co-District Champions for the first time since 1961.

Story by Matt Orlando
Down in the trenches, the Dogs' defensive line prepares to do battle with Hamshire-Fannett's offensive line. The Dogs shutdown the Longhorns' offense, holding them to only fifteen points.

Awaiting the hit, senior Jake Moye helps finish off a Bridge City running back. The Dogs scored a season high sixty-three points against the Cardinals on Homecoming.

Daring down the receiver, junior Brian Pomeroy gets in position to stop T.J.'s passing game. The Dogs won their first district game against the Yellowjackets and ended the season with a 6-1 district record.

Seniors Ross LaBove and Brad Sullivan discuss strategy during the Ozen game. LaBove broke the school rushing record of 1,622 yards with 1,700 yards during the regular season alone, while Sullivan led the passing attack.

Celebrating after a home victory, the Dogs raise their helmets with pride. The Dogs went undefeated at home this year, including a 31-0 playoff victory over Ozen.

Rushing the passer, senior Scott Mayhew fights with a Dayton offensive lineman. The Dogs recorded their first shutout of the year against the Broncos.
The lights from atop the Astrodome cast brightly down onto the turf. The crowd began to “bark” when the Dogs took the field to practice. The Dogs had advanced to the Quarterfinal round of the State Championship. The “curse of the Dome” had been lifted the previous week after Nederland’s victory over the Jacksonville Indians. The next task at hand would prove to be one of the toughest because awaiting Nederland’s challenge was the number two ranked Texas City Stingarees.

“Playing in the playoffs was real exciting, especially since we got to go to the Dome,” said senior Scott Mayhew. “We went all the way to the Quarterfinals, and we had a blast the whole time.”

The Stingarees took a commanding 14-0 lead at halftime. The Bulldogs finally scored with 6:38 left in the third quarter, as Ross LaBove ran in from seven yards out leaving Nederland trailing by eight points. Texas City added a field goal to put the Stingarees up 17-6. Early in the game, however, starting quarterback Brad Sullivan went down with a bruised shoulder, and in stepped junior quarterback Kevin Barbay.

“It felt good just to get an opportunity to step in and play and show my ability,” said Barbay. “Next year I think we’re going to have a lot of great senior leadership and a bunch of sophomores and juniors to step up and play.”

The Bulldogs scored one more time after Sean Yoder picked up a fumble after an interception and returned it 59 yards for the touchdown. The Dogs fell short by the final score of 26-12. The Bulldogs ended the season with an 11-2 overall record, including a 35-0 shutout over Ozen for the Bi-District championship in round one at Bulldog Stadium.

Uncorking a massive hit, junior linebacker Ryan Cobb forces the Ozen quarterback to fumble. Cobb made several key tackles and led the defense to complete the 35-0 shutout over the Panthers in round one of the playoffs.

Flying by a Texas City defensive back, junior receiver Sean Yoder gains more yards after the catch. Yoder was a part of the special teams core as well, returning many punts and kickoffs for touchdowns during the entire season.

Lying on his knee, kicker Drew Gallagher watches his teammates in the quarterfinals. Gallagher’s knee injury occurred when a Texas City defender attempted to block a field goal.
Huddled around his teammates, junior Kevin Barbay can no longer hold back the emotions of defeat. Barbay was forced to step in and lead the Dogs after Sullivan's injury.

Realizing that he will never play another down of high school football quarterback Brad Sullivan awaits the final seconds to tick away from the 26-12 loss to Texas City. Sullivan injured his shoulder early in the game, but came back after halftime to try to lead the Dogs past the Stingarees.

Concentrating on his run, fullback Joe Ramoin stiff arms a would-be Jacksonville tackler in the Astrodome. Ramoin spent most of the season blocking for Ross LaBove.

Following the lead blocker Russell Henckel, senior Ross LaBove looks for an open lane to run through. LaBove sustained an injury towards the end of the quarterfinals.
Many long hours were spent practicing for the Junior Varsity and Freshmen Volleyball teams’ three month season.

The Junior Varsity and Freshmen volleyball teams began the season ready for competition. JV scores were 25-4 overall and 12-2 in district, and Freshmen scores were 29-3 overall and 12-2 in district. High point players for JV were Brittney Bradford and Sunny Wilson. During the rival PN-G game, dominating the court offensively were Rachael Jones, Rebekah Crabtree and Mary Dubose, and dominating defensively were Jamie Ramirez, Alisha Allen and Brittny Van Marion.

Although the Lady Dogs were faced with many tough competitors, the girls managed to get fourth in district. “The girls worked hard, and because of much work and dedication, this season was a success,” said Coach Melissa Martin.
Patiently waiting for the serve, the girls concentrate on their fellow teammate Rebekah Crabtree, freshman.

Natasha Williams, sophomore, waits for the serve and anticipates the play.

Getting ready for the serve are sophomores Jamie Perez, Alishia Allen and Brittny Van Marion.

Watching the game from the bench helps the girls prepare for their playing time.

Freshman Rebekah Crabtree crouches and stays low while waiting for the serve.

The girls huddle up one last time to strategize and plan their next play before going in.

Sophomore Brittany Eccles goes up for the block and sends the ball to slam the opposing team.
Although the Varsity Girls Volleyball team competed against some tough opponents, their intense season still ended with a fourth place in the district.

The toughest teams the girls went up against were Port Neches-Groves and Thomas Jefferson, the top two teams in the district. "We played hard and were very aggressive offensively and defensively," said Coach Toni Leach.

Top servers were Jessica Hardin with 191 points, Liz Grossman with 166 points, and Katie Laser with 132 points. Top hitters were Katie Laser with 203 kills, and Kassi Tyson with 115 kills. Top setter was Liz Grossman with 466 assists, and top defensive player was Jessica Hardin with 178 blocks.

Leach said the teams' overall efforts were excellent. "The girls played intensely and aggressively. They were very competitive and played their best," said Leach.

Because of hard work and dedication the Lady Dog's season was a great success.

Jessica Hardin, senior, starts off the game with a serve. This brings in yet another point for the lady dogs.

With their strategy in full effect, Katie Laser, junior, finishes off the play with a forceful spike.

Konica Landry, sophomore, takes the serve to begin the play.

Liz Grossman, and Sarah Landry, seniors, wait for the ball in anticipation of the play.
The lady dogs huddle up for a last minute victory pep before going in for the kill.

As the team listens, Coach Leach gives some useful strategy tips to the girls.

The players watch on as the serve soars over the net. Konnie Landry, sophomore, settles down anticipating the attack.
Liz Grossman, senior, sends a serve to the opposing team. Grossman brought in six points against 2nd place team Thomas Jefferson.

As her teammates watch, Aspen Rogers, junior, waits for the ball. Rogers’ bump sent the ball sailing over the net, bringing in a point for the Lady Dogs.
Casey Romero's forceful serve goes over the net and hits the opponent's side with a slam. Hardin, junior, gets off the ground while aggressively returning the ball. Toni Leach calls time-out in the 3rd game against PN-G.
Swathi Chandamuri and Heather Barnes, juniors, made their own rain dance, and it actually worked at the Clayborne Meet.

Coach Cutrer stood up in front of the bus and fell down the stairs when the bus came to a sudden stop.

Suzanne Van Velson, senior, and Ali Touchstone, sophomore, were running together at practice one day when they turned a corner and Touchstone ran into a trash can and someone nearby asked if she was OK.

Sarah Judkins, freshman, after placing first at the Pleasure Island Meet, slipped and sat right on the finish line in front of everyone.

Shawn Cauthen and Rollin Thrift, juniors, were really late to practice one day so they drove to C. O. Wilson Middle School and when the team came up they acted like they had been running for the whole time.

Mandi Feldshau, senior, was listening to her headphones and singing loudly until she realized the whole bus was listening.

Todd Van Velson, freshman, spit out the window of the bus and it came back in the window and landed on the person sitting behind him.

After the Nederland Meet, when the team went out to eat, Barnes accidentally spit ice into junior Mary Beth Distefano’s mouth.

Jeannestyle Miller, junior, accidentally flipped a spoonful of mash potatoes into junior Lauren Pinder’s lap at Golden Corral.
The District Meet is a very important race because we want to show PN-G who is better going into the Regional Meet, Cutrer. The Varsity guys beat PN-G in District, Regionals and State.

This is the first year that Nederland held the Bulldog Invitational at Dobos Park. Guys and girls Varsity teams took home the first place trophies at their own home meets.

Todd Van Velzen, freshman, won the boys' District Meet. He even broke the District record winning time which has not been broken in several years.

Lauren Pinder, junior, spends many hours training. The hours amounted to Pinder winning the girls District Meet.

Both Varsity teams and JV teams display their awards and medals after both Varsity teams won District.
Keith Woosley, junior, squats the bar as teammates and competitors look on to see if he will beat them.

Scott Mayhew, Joe McRee, Nichole Segura, seniors, and Joey Foster, junior, along with Coach Frank Glenn stop in front of a trophy case to take a picture.
I'm Weatherly, sophomore, takes a break from the hard days’ work at a meet. Weatherly placed first at a JV meet and then got moved up to the Varsity team.

Scott Mayhew, senior, and lifts the weight as he competes for the title.

Justin Wiltz, junior, lifts the weight as he is cheered on.

Elliott Morris, junior, strains as he grabs the bar in a dead lift.

Providing words of wisdom, Coach Lawrence Williams gives the team some instructions during a time-out. The Dogs went 18-18 overall and finished with a 5-9 district record.

Fighting off Vidor players, senior Chadd Inglis pulls down a rebound. Inglis was a two-year varsity letterman and averaged 12 points and four blocks per game.

Waiting before game time, seniors Jason Galassi, Aaron Durden, Chadd Inglis and Gus Penton prepare for the ensuing tip-off. Senior leadership was a key element during the course of the season.

Ryan Piletere, junior, dives back to first during the second game of the LC-M series. Piletere had seven stolen bases during district play.

T.J. Roberts, senior, prepares for the ball to come his way. Roberts played first base all season for the Dogs.

Jared Lane, senior, sets his stance against LC-M pitcher Jerry Kelley. Lane bailed the Dogs out of many jams with his mighty bat.
Mary DuBose, freshman, tags the Kingwood runner out. DuBose made sure to yell at the umpire to get his attention.

Carrie DuBose, sophomore, hurled the ball at the plate against a Kingwood batter. DuBose led the Lady Dogs as one of the pitchers.

Carrie DuBose, sophomore, watches one go by. DuBose and the Lady Dogs battled Kingwood in a round robin tournament at PN-G.
Megan Vell, freshman, rounds first base and pauses as she starts to make her way to second. Vell and the Lady Dogs had to learn signs to know what to do when the coaches told them to.

Brittany Eccles, sophomore, tags a Kingwood runner out. This is Eccles' second year playing for the Lady Dogs.

Mary Huffman, freshman, slides into home plate, knocking the ball out of the Kingwood glove.
Kristen Murty, junior, dusts off and steps up to the plate, getting ready for the pitch.

Casey Romero, junior, smacks the ball and sends it flying over the heads of the outfielders from the opposing team.

Sophomore Morgan Lee tries to dodge a bad pitch. Lee then closes her eyes, swings, and hopes to make contact with the ball. Realizing that she has in fact made contact, Lee swings all the way through, sending the ball flying high.

Going for a foul ball, junior Brittany Smith catches it just in time before it hits the ground.

Smiling proudly, the varsity girls, along with their hard working coaches, take a minute to pose for the camera and to show off their new trophy.
Konnie Landry, sophomore, swings through and sends a pop fly to the right fielder.

Krista White, senior, awaits the pitch. She swings through and hits a ground ball to shortstop and out-runs the throw to first.

Healing back to the dugout after a victorious game, the girls talk and goof off.

Morgan Lee, sophomore, bears down and runs through second base and rounds the corner going toward third.

Morgan Lee, sophomore, dives down and awaits a ground ball.

Jennifer Whitehead, sophomore, plays catch with the third baseman while the team warms up for the game.

Leading up for one last time, the girls discuss the game.
While most students were all warm and cozied up in bed at 5:00 in the morning, the members of the NHS swim team were already up and moving about busily trying to gather their things for the morning’s practice. While in season, the swimmers practiced every morning and sometimes twice a day to get ready for district, regional, and then, for some swimmers, on to state. “Practices are hard work, but it’s worth it in the long run,” said Tamara Tillery, junior.

The swim team competed against various schools including Kelly, Dobie, and Fort Bend, and went on to be district champions. “This group of athletes was a joy to coach; they worked hard and knew when to step up and take responsibility,” said Coach Kristen Hefner.

Although this was Hefner’s first year as head coach for the team, she coached at Lamar for several years. Also new with the team was Coach Kevin Morrison. “I have really enjoyed coaching this year. This team was very devoted and always worked hard. Overall, we had a winning season,” said Morrison. With much hard work and dedication, the swim team had a year to remember.

While Charleine Maisonneuve, senior, comes in, Dedrick Maisonneuve, freshman, jumps off the block to take the next leg of the relay.

As the district meet comes to an end, the girls stand proudly on the blocks holding their first place trophy.

Although Dedrick Maisonneuve is merely a freshman, he manages to proudly take first place for the 50 meter freestyle.

The senior girls try to hide their tears after their last meet.

During off-season the swim team practices every other morning keeping themselves in shape. Diane Clements, senior, is practicing her 100 yard fly.

Kim Wecks, senior, holds her head up high as she takes first place for the 50 yard freestyle. Charleine Maisonneuve took second in this event.
Ashley Tillery, freshman, Dea Wilson, junior, Charleine Maisonneuve, senior, and Lacie White, freshman, show their teammates support while cheering them on.

The longest, most grueling race a swimmer comes up against is the 500 yard freestyle. Maisonneuve swims her hardest trying to complete this race.
Patrick Bergeron, junior, brings back his racquet in preparation for an overhead. Bergeron and Justin Dowden placed second in district for doubles.

Cory Woodson, junior, hits a forehand during the Nederland tournament. Woodson performed well during the season and helped score Nederland points in tournaments.

The boys' tennis team takes a break after a long, hard day at work. The team made it to the finals in every tournament they competed in.
Michael Trevino and Curtis Adix, juniors, play hard during the Nederland tournament. Trevino and Adix won the Nederland tournament.

Allison Glynn, freshman prepares for a forehand. This was Glynn’s first year on the team.

Curtis Adix, junior, swings at a high forehand. Adix was one of seven boys that made up the team.

Joey Foster, junior, awaits a ball so he can forehand volley it over the net.
Golf Records

* The golf team won first place and were district champions.

* After advancing, they won seventh place at regionals.

* During the season they won five out of seven tournaments.

Hilary Hebert, senior, waits patiently for her next turn.

Sophomore Jennifer Bodden and freshmen Kim Cessac and Tiffany Rivas eat after a hot day at regionals.
The golf team is made up of sophomores Jessica Wood and Jennifer Bodden, senior Hilary Hebert, junior Kaye Collins, and freshmen Tiffany Rivas and Kim Cessac.

Hilary Hebert, senior, takes a stroke at the hole.

The team warms up before the regional tournament.

While the tournament is going on, NHS players play against the opposing team.

Sophomores Jessica Wood and Jen Bodden, senior Hilary Hebert, freshmen Tiffany Rivas and Kim Cessac, and junior Kaye Collins have some fun after the golf tournament.

Jason Boone, freshman, makes up time in between the hurdles. Boone qualified for the finals in the 300 meter hurdles at district.

Kevin Barbay, junior, attempts to make the height at the Ty Terrell meet.

Lauren Pinder, junior, keeps her pace in the 1600 meter run.

Jeff Cutrer, sophomore, maintains speed to finish the race. Cutrer went to state in the 3200 meter run.

Todd Van Velnos, freshman, lengthens his stride to finish the 3200 meter run. Van Velnos went to state in the 3200 meter run and the 1600 meter run.

Brooke Wooding, freshman, hands off to Ashli Yawn, sophomore, in the 800 meter relay. The relay consisted of two laps in which each person ran 200 meters.

Lucas Harris, freshman, paces himself in the 1600 meter run at district. The district meet was held at T.J. High School.
Amber Smith, freshman, and Coach Dial, girls head coach, help stretch Brooke Wooding, freshman, for the 400 meter relay. It is important to stretch and warm muscles before a race.

Jeanette Miller, junior, keeps her speed in the 800 meter run. Miller went to regionals in the 800 meter run.

Sean Yoder, junior, prepares for the 100 meter dash in finals at the district meet. Yoder went to regionals in the long jump.

Josh Morgan, senior, makes his approach in the shot-put. Morgan went to regionals in the shot-put and the discus.

This section is all the leftover items in the book that don’t exactly fit in with other things. So we put them all in a section together— the “leftovers” of the book, one might say. It tends to be the section most looked at but the hardest to put together.

Matt Orlando, senior, put many countless hours into designing and redesigning the index until he felt it was perfect. He volunteered to do the work and to this day we don’t have a clue why. But to him we say thanks; it is the best index we’ve ever seen. Another volunteer is Mark Jones, junior, who was the ads manager. He tried so hard and worked so diligently and we hope the customers like their ads. We also want to thank the businesses who helped contribute to our book and all those parents, families and friends who bought vanity ads. We would not have a book if it were not for all of you.

Now we end with the volunteering and begin with the patient cooperative staff members that we just threw all of this hard work on. Sarah Hale, junior, designed the Current Events at the last minute when we asked her to. Not only did she finish them fast, she did an outstanding job. Thanks Sarah for not complaining and for doing a good job. Stefanie Gregg, junior, designed the candid pages and, just like Sarah, at the last minute when we threw it on her. Thank you both for understanding and helping us out when we needed it.

Also we give a big thanks to Gay Gaston for helping us finish this section in the summer while everyone else was away on vacation. She spell checked names and looked over corrections for anything that could possibly be wrong.

We can not get by with thanking our adviser’s mom and not our adviser. So to Kathy Gaston we say thanks so much for sticking by us until the very end. Thanks also for not pulling our hair out (Miranda’s and Christie’s) even though at times we all wanted to pull each other’s out.

So now that we have given credit to the people who made this section possible, please turn the page and enjoy the “leftovers” of the book, our personal favorite.

Letter by Christie Waite and Miranda Mullican
"Craig's debut" You have always been such a pleasure and filled our home with joy and laughter.

"For I know the plans I have for you, sayeth the Lord, plans of peace and not evil, to give you a future and a hope."

Jeremiah 29:11

Love, Mom and Dad
Congratulations
Breanne and Angie

Growing up,
Growing old,
Getting smart,
Getting bold,
We've watched you two from the start,
both of you complete our hearts,
Rays of sunshine, both of you
May God help your dreams come true.
We are so proud of you girls!
Love,
The Osgood and Lalko Families
Haley Ann Murphy

Haley,
Thinking of you, we can’t help but smile.
We are so proud of you!
Good luck with success, friends and love in the future and we hope you always have lots of fun.
Momma, Daddy,
Christina, Adrian and Sadie
Wow, our little girl
Ready for this big world
Your future is bright
Keep goals in sight
You have a great start
That God-given talent-Art
How precious you are
Our bright shining star

We love you,
Momma, Daddy, Trevor & Stefan
Years may pass and friendships may fade
But we'll never forget the memories we've made
Memories that go beyond these High School halls
Memories of tutus, barbies and soccer balls
Now the Class of 2000 must part
So reach for the stars...but follow your heart

Cassи,
You have turned into a beautiful intelligent young woman. May all your dreams come true. I hope that you stay as sweet as you are now. I’m glad you are my “best friend.”
I love you very much,
Mom

P.S. Always Smile
We are so proud of the person you’ve become. We pray that your future is a happy one. Congratulations on all you’ve accomplished. Our hearts are full, and we’ll always love you.

Dad and Mom
Lou Lou,

I love you and I miss fighting with you. I will cherish all of the fond memories I have of you being a wonderful, bratty little sister. Congratulations and good luck.

Love Always,
Your Big Sis Britt

Lindie,

When you started kindergarten, we figured up the year you would graduate. We were excited to find out it would be the year "2000." So we had a T-shirt made for you to start school in, "Class of 2000." That seems like just yesterday and now it is here. You have been very active through those years. You have been the boy daddy never had, by going deer hunting with him. You have been Mom's shopping partner. You love snow skiing, children and church. You have worked very hard in school to be a honor student. You have become everything we had hoped and prayed for. You have kept your morals and walk with God. You have been the center of our family entertainment with a great personality. You have never let peer pressure affect you. We are so proud of you. Keep your walk with God and he will help you reach all your dreams.

Love,
Mom & Dad
Gayla,
We appreciate all the hard work and effort you have put out over the years. Most of all we appreciate the life you have lived for God. Always keep Him first.
Love,
Dad & Mom

Gamora,
You are a sweet and special girl. We love you and are very proud of this accomplishment.
Love,
Dad & Mom

Sabrina,
We are very proud of your success.
Love,
Dad & Mom

Lindie,
Class of 2000, "WOW." It is here and you have done a great job. You have become the young lady we have prayed for. Keep God first in your life and you will go far with great accomplishments.
Love,
Dad & Mom

Robert,
We are so proud of you, and if your twin brother (Little Earl) were here he would be proud too. We know it has been a struggle for you with your sickness, but you have finally made it. Stay in God's will and He will help you succeed in all things.
Love,
Dad & Mom

Wendell,
We are extremely proud of your dedication and winning outlook.
Congratulations,
Dad & Mom

 Wes,
We thank God for putting you in our home. We are proud of your accomplishments. Remember to take God with you as you reach for new goals.
Love,
Dad & Mom

Our sincere congratulations to seven successful graduates from Faith Tabernacle Church: Lindie Drawhorn, Wendell Frazier, Robert Green, Gayla and Wesley Linder, Sabrina Royer, and Tamara Scoggins. We appreciate their character, diligence and perseverance to complete an important goal in their lives. May the courage they exhibited in the graduation process be continued through their personal lives in every aim they pursue. Our prayers and encouragement to them as they embark on the journey into adulthood and maturity.

God Bless You - We're proud of you.
Rev. & Mrs. Derwood Hammer and our church family!

Two boys did meet years ago,
And soon a friendship began to grow.
So much in common, so much to do,
Happy days for the duo of two.

Basketball became their game,
All the players they knew by name.
Moms would call, they would not stop.
Without another bounce, dribble, hop.

The surgeon's hands were swift and sure.
But there are things men cannot cure.
God called Mike for his team,
For ones on earth—the nightmare dream.

As one mom clutched her lifeless child
Who throughout life had brought all smiles;
The other mom sobbed through broken breaths,
To tell her son of his friend's death.

The boy held his friend's beloved dogs
Recalling memories through a fog,
While his mom climbed the steps
To sit in his room where life's memories are kept.

Much too soon, the boys were parted,
Leaving mothers broken hearted.
But friendship cords cannot be severed
Two friends, two moms, together forever!

Mike will always have a special place in our hearts!

The 1999-2000 Yearbook Staff would like to thank the members of the board of trustees and the administration for their support throughout the year.
Flooded New York’s Times Square at the start of the new millennium as the clock struck midnight, Saturday, Jan. 1, 2000. The crowd, estimated at more than a million, stretched nearly 20 blocks from the dropping ball.

In October, 1999, Pope John Paul II began his 22nd year as pope, the longest papal service of this century. The 79-year-old pope's unflagging dedication made him the most traveled of any pope—88 pastoral voyages outside the Vatican. He also created 157 cardinals, wrote 13 encyclicals, convened 14 synods and greeted an estimated 14 million faithful in his general audiences.

Super Bowl XXXIV was Jan. 30, 2000. The Saint Louis Rams defeated the Tennessee Titans 23-16 in what was arguably the most exciting finish ever in a Super Bowl. After the Rams took the lead on Kurt Warner's 73-yard TD pass to Isaac Bruce, with 54 seconds left in regulation, Tennessee drove the field, with Steve McNair's pass to Kevin Dyson coming up just a yard short of tying the game as time expired. Kurt Warner, the Rams quarterback, was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

Madeleine Albright was the 64th U.S. Secretary of State. She was the first female to hold that esteemed office, becoming the highest ranking woman in the United States government. As Secretary of State and as U.S. representative to the United Nations before that, she created policies and institutions to help guide the world into a new century of peace and prosperity.

President William Jefferson Clinton is the last president of the Twentieth Century. He was first elected in 1992 when a sluggish economy took its toll on the relatively popular George Bush. Going into the 1996 election, Clinton's approval ratings soared and never faltered through Election Day. Toward the end of his second term, he survived an impeachment trial.

Hillary Rodham Clinton earned praise for standing by her husband during President Clinton's impeachment trial toward the end of his second term. She proved to be an ambitious and politically savvy First Lady, which fueled speculation that she would run for the Senate, representing New York, in the 2000 elections. She had the credentials, including a degree from Yale Law School.

Vice President Al Gore, with President Clinton's open support, started the race for the White House in 1999 as the clear early front-runner for the Democratic nomination. History favored Gore since the incumbent vice president who sought the Presidential nomination was almost always successful.

One of the best known personalities in rap, and the guy with the most recognizable delivery, Busta Rhymes broke out on his own in 1996 with a solo hit single "Woo-Hah! Got You All in Check.

One of the most energetic groups in the fusion of metal, punk and hip-hop, Limp Bizkit was formed in Florida in 1994 by vocalist Fred Durst and his friend Sam Rivers on bass.

A protege of Dr. Dre, rapper Eminem began performing at the age of 14, later earning notoriety as a member of the Motor City duo Soul Intent. He made his solo debut in 1996 with the independent release "infinite," soon followed by "Slim Shady," which scored a hit with the single and video "My Name Is."

With the help of his gold-certified 1996 single-a duet with Foxy Brown, Jay-Z signed a record contract that same year and released his debut album, "Reasonable Doubt." The single "Can't Knock the Hustle" hit the R&B Top 40, pushing the album into gold territory. His latest album, "Hard Knock Life" has been on the charts for more than a year.

The sweet urban soul quartet 98 Degrees was formed in Los Angeles by four former Ohio residents: brothers Nick and Drew Lachey plus Jeff Timmons and Justin Jeffre. The quartet was working a variety of odd jobs to finance their music when they got a chance to sing on a local radio station. From that appearance they got a record deal, and their debut single, "Invisible Man," went gold during 1997.
Manner
Kid Rock was born Bob Richie in Detroit; debuting in 1990 with "Grit Sandwiches for Breakfast," he resurfaced three years later with "The Polyfuze Method." He shot to infamy when a Detroit radio station was hit with outrageous fines for playing one of his expletive-crazed songs.

Destiny
Child is a hit rhythm and blues group from Houston. They remained on "Men in Black: The Album" with their song "Killing Time." Early in 1998 the group released their debut album, featuring the single "No, No, No."

Entertainer
Britney Spears began her career as part of the Disney channel's Mickey Mouse Club. After two seasons she signed to Jive Records and in early 1999 issued her debut album, "Baby One More Time." It hit the charts immediately.

The Dixie Chicks rose to become one of the most popular acts in contemporary country music. They achieved enormous success in 1998 with their debut of "Wide Open Spaces." Within a year of its release, it had gone quadruple platinum and the Dixie Chicks had become superstars.

Korn's alternative metal sound positioned the group among the most popular and provocative to emerge during the post-grunge era in 1999. Korn began its existence as the California-based LAPD. They issued their first album in 1994. Their latest album "Follow the Leader" has been on the charts for more than a year.

Ricky Martin was one of the biggest teen idols in the 1990s. He was blessed with good looks and a great voice, which helped him become a huge Latin music star.

Emerging in the 1990s, Shania Twain became the most popular country music artist since Garth Brooks.
Patrick J. Buchanan, an unapologetic social conservative and former Nixon speech writer, is making his third run for President 2000. While the 61-year-old Buchanan clearly had national name recognition and a core constituency with the GOP, he had trouble making any substantial inroads during this campaign. In national polls of GOP voters, he never made a good showing. His fifth place finish in the Iowa GOP Straw Poll in August 1999 quickly propelled Buchanan towards his active consideration of a third party bid.

On July 19, 1999, John F. Kennedy, Jr., his wife, Carolyn Bessette Kennedy, and her sister, were killed when the small plane that he was piloting crashed into the waters off the coast of Hyannisport, MA.

JFK, Jr. was a cofounder of George Magazine and many felt that he would follow his father's footsteps into the political arena.

Hurricane Floyd charged up the East Coast with fearsome winds and drenching rain. More than 8,000 members of the National Guard in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia were mobilized to help communities recover from destruction that cost an estimated $1.3 billion.

The New York Yankees celebrate after winning the World Series in New York, Wed., Oct. 27, 1999. The Yankees defeated the Atlanta Braves 4-1 to sweep the series. Mariano Rivera was named the Most Valuable Player of the series.

A devastating earthquake hit Turkey in 1999, killing more than 17,000 people. Nearly 50,000 people were injured in the quake, which destroyed or dangerously weakened more than 139,000 residential buildings. Hundreds of thousands were left homeless and forced to live in tent cities.

Serena Williams stormed into the tennis world and in her second year as a pro won her first Grand Slam in 1999, beating Martina Hingis to capture the U.S. Open. She became the first black woman to win a Grand Slam since Althea Gibson in 1958. She also won the doubles title with her older sister, Venus.

Willie Chamberlain was considered by many to be the greatest basketball player ever. He died in 1999 at the age of 63 of an apparent heart attack. Chamberlain took a marvelous athletic ability and a tremendous size at a height of 7 feet 1 inch and weighing 290 pounds, and made the most of it.

George W. Bush burst onto the national scene when he defeated liberal incumbent Ann Richards for Texas governor in 1994. He was reelected by an impressive landslide in 1998. More moderate than his conservative father, former President George W. was often called a "compassionate conservative" and has a strong following among GOP activists.

Bill Bradley, a well known former pro basketball star and New Jersey senator, spent 1998 raising money for Democratic congressional candidates. Bradley entered the Presidential race in early 1999. Early polls showed him in a distant second place. However he proved to be a strong campaigner and an impressive fund-raiser, raising over $18 million by the end of September.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin was not a healthy man. The 68-year-old president had been hospitalized for various reasons. Though critics said Yeltsin should step down because of his health, the president insisted that he was in good shape and would stay in office until his term ended.

My teachers: Thanks for letting me work on yearbook as much as it did you.

Kim Richardson & Joanie Chappell: You two were so quiet, unlike the rest of the class. Thanks for giving me no headaches.

Alisha Novich & Shalyn Loventhal: You two work great together. Thanks for designing some great pages.

Megan Davis & Katie Green: Thanks for making me laugh always.

Amy Cacioppo & Eric Hoggins: Thanks for doing all the work no one else would and not complaining. Ya’ll really helped us out a lot.

Stefanie Grege & Keri Boudreaux: Well, we got some great pictures thanks to you two. We couldn’t have a yearbook without pictures.

Mark Jones: Thanks for always being my overworking, complaining partner. And just remember “We do everything, ugh.”

Brandon Brammer & Sarah Hale: Hey you two, if Miranda and I were not the editors you two would be the ones I would want to take our place. Thanks for all your work.

Megan Sheehan: Thanks for helping me with more problems than just yearbook. You are an awesome friend and just try to keep in mind “What goes around comes around.”

Matt Orlando & Breanne Osgood: Thanks for always helping me to find ways around things both in life and in yearbook. I love both of you and your lucky number is 24.

Ms. Gaston: Thanks for never letting me quit (that is even when I had not slept in two days and had been working on yearbook for 24 hours straight and I just wanted to take a restroom break).

Miranda Mullican: I wouldn’t want anyone else to be my partner in crime (fellow editor). We have learned a lot about yearbook this year but we have learned more about each other. Get ready for next year, girl.

Kathryn Martindale, Amber Weatherford, & Heather Barnes: Thanks for helping me forget about yearbook at times and have somewhat of a normal life. All of you are great friends and I love all of you.

Samantha Osgood: Thanks for being there for me. I miss you, but no matter what I will always love you like a sister.

Natalee Knod: Thanks for putting up with me and yearbook. You are my best friend and I will always be here for you. Love ya.

Ernie Knod: I know you never helped me with yearbook, at times you probably distracted me from yearbook if it anything. But I do remember a time when my life just consisted of yearbook and you, and to those times I say...thank you. In my heart I will always be your girl. I love ya.:)

Michael James Tobias: It was hard trying to fill your shoes but I did my best. But you are still second best to Mandy, she’s just 24 times better than you. J/K! I love you.

Mrs. Cowles: I owe you so very much but I am still striving to do everything you taught me in yearbook and in life.

Parents & Family: Thanks for realizing that it was a necessity to eat, live, sleep and breath yearbook and not complaining one bit about it. Ya’ll are great to me, I love all of you.

GOD: Thank you for granting me the patience to deal with yearbook.
Thank you for giving me this. All the people you have surrounded me with, through good and bad times, have helped me grow.

Christie Waite: My evil counterpart. We work well together. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’ve got a lot more coming. I’m ready.

Mrs. Cowles: Thank you for giving me this opportunity. When I first got into Journalism, I had no idea it would lead to this.

Matt Orlando: Thanks for always being up here 24 hours a day. You helped so much even when you didn’t want to. Good luck, have fun and come see me some time.

Sarah Hale: Sarah, you are awesome. I don’t know how to thank you for all the work (your’s and everyone else’s) you did. Senior year is going to be a blast.

Breanne Osgood: Even though it was rough, you always did what you had to do. Thank you so much, and good luck in the future.

Mark Jones: I know your job was hard, especially because of it being your first year, but thank you so much for volunteering. God knows nobody else would have, and you did a great job.

Eric Hoggins: You always brought new (sometimes weird) ideas into the room, and made me laugh. Thanks for working so hard. You made some great pages.

Brandon Brammer: I’m looking forward to next year. We’ll be seniors! Thanks for all your work this year.

Amy Cacioppo: Little Chope! I’m so glad you’re in this class even though you didn’t get to do very much this year. I promise you will next year.

Megan Sheehan: We always like having new people in the class to do the dirty work. J/K. I know you didn’t always like it, but it helped so much and you better be back next year.

Joanie Chappell & Kim Richardson: Even though we didn’t work together long, I want you to know all of your work was greatly appreciated.

Alisha Novich & Shalyn Loventhal: You weren’t here long, but I’m glad I got to work with you. Thanks for always helping out.

Megan Davis & Katie Green: You always made it interesting.

Stefanie Gregg & Keri Boudreaux: Pictures make this book. Without you two we wouldn’t have them. Thank you so much.

Ms. Gaston: Gaston, thanks for everything. Even through hard times we still got it done (because you nagged so much). Thank you!

My friends: You guys know who you are. I had to say something about how great you are. We won’t forget these years together.

Aaron: Thanks for being there even with all the times I stood you up and backed out on plans. I know it was hard to understand how much time Yearbook takes.

Family: Thank you for letting me do this without too much hassle about me coming home late.

Teachers: Thanks to the teachers who helped with this year’s and last year’s books. I am so glad you care enough to help out in hard times.

THANK YOU!

This 1999-2000 edition of the Pilot, "IT'S NOT WHAT YOU EXPECT," volume 66, was edited and designed by Miranda Mullican and Christie Waite and produced by a class of 15 under the direction of adviser Kathy Gaston. The book was printed by Taylor Publishing, represented by Lee Briggs. The pages were all designed on 5 computers using Adobe Pagemaker 6.5 in Windows 98 using disk - submission form. Senior pictures and a portion of the group shots were taken by Ron's Photography. The rest of the student pictures were taken by Provine. Sandra Rogers also donated numerous pictures. Braud's Camera & Video developed all the pictures unless other volunteer photographers contributed photos from their own collections. The editors would like to give a special thanks to Mrs. Byars for helping them finish last year’s book, making it possible to start on this yearbook. The staff spent numerous hours in the Journalism room, even after school and on the weekends, in order to finish this book. Staff members also used much of their other class time to produce this book. To those teachers who let the staff come work, we bid you thanks. Also, a special thanks goes to Colt Smith for the use of his dog, Junior.
